SAYS ROSE HILL OIL PROJECT IS PROMISING

Experienced Oil Man Examined Field Yesterday, Commends Proposition And Urges Promotion of Section

SAYS SANDS SHOWS HIGH-GRADE LIGHT OIL

That the Rose Hill oil prospect is an entertaining and promising proposition was the off hand opinion expressed this morning by D. E. Rossetter of Lexington whi went over the field yesterday with local men. Mr. Rossetter has been connected with the operative and producing ends of oil projects in Kentucky for a number of years and he is an authority on the subject.

"Mr. Rossetter asserted that he had had no opportunity to study either the field or the oil, and that the character of both was such that no estimate of the project could accurately be made without careful study. However, judging from appearances he thinks this a very likely proposition.

Mr. Rossetter said that the samples o the oil sand which he examined greatly resembled the Berea Grit and the Weir Formation, two types of oil which, when found in oil districts of Pennsylvania and West Virginia, generally guarantee a high-grade oil and a good-paying well. The oil he examined here, he said, was a splendid light oil, development of which would be very profitable if it was deep enough.

Deeper drilling was recommended by Mr. Rossetter. He said that the finding of the salt water had nothing to do with the matter as the elevation of the section was so far above sea level In connecting with this, he remarked on the "jumbled up" features of formation here, saying that rock or coal layers and other strata did not run parallel, as in other sections, but that the strata was formed sidewise in most instances. He said he had not investigated far enough to know the reason for this.

Mr. Rossetter's chief suggestion was a thorough investigation of the oil section and promotion of the property He advised against individuals trying to hold up leases and said that big oil companies should be invited to come in to develop the fields as they had equipment and capital, knew what they were doing and would work fairly.

GOLF TOURNAMENT MATCHES MUST BE PLAYED ON TIME

All golf matches must be played off in due time or the entire bracket will be forfieted, according to W. P. Scales, president of the Middlesboro Golf Club who will award a handsome engraved silver trophy to the winner in the final contest. It is important that the matches be played off as rapidly as possible, he says, for the time cannot be extended indefinitely.

John Miller eliminated Mr. Jeffries in the match played off recently. Other teams are scheduled to play until all except one are eliminated. The match played by the winning team will decide the winner of the president's trophy.

MINGO TO HAVE GOOD ROADS DAY

Miners Will Work Next Thursday Repairing Roads—Local Firms to Lend Trucks

Good Roads Day will be observed up Mingo Hollow one day next week, probably Thursday if the mines are not running that day, some other day if the mines are running Thursday. At this time the miners and other residents will all cooperate to fix the road that leads up the hollow and put it in condition to make travel over it easier.

Robert Johns, purchasing agent for Sterling Coal and Coke Co., is directing the work and he has asked Middlesboro business men to help out by lending their trucks for the day and by coming out to help if they could. The following have offered the use of their trucks: Chero-Cola Bottling Works, Jellico Grocery Company, Bell County Coal and Lumber Company, Middlesboro Wholesale Grocery, Allen Lumber Company and Lovett Fruit and Produce Company.

LARGE CAPTURE IN LIQUOR RAIDS

Twelve Gallons Found at R. C. Campbell's Place—Saylor Leads Raid Here Today

Federal, city and county officers joined in liquor raids here today resulted in the capture of thirteen gallons of whisky and five men. The hotel and pool-room of R. C. Campbell on Ashbury avenue was the first place raided. Twenty-four gallon fruit jars of whisky were found there and R. C. Campbell, R. C. Campbell Jr., Howard Smith and Gordon Ballinger, negroes, were arrested.

After the first raid the officers brought the liquor and the prisoners to the city hall. The jars of whisky were broken on the street in front of the city hall in the presence of dozens of witness. W. B. Saylor, leader of the raiders, then called a meeting of the officers and other raids were planned.

A gallon of whiskey was found at the Junction in a spring. Wesley Matthews, alleged owner, was arrested and brought to jail. Other places were raided and no liquor found. At one residence a large barrel of fermented apples was found. A bottle of the liquid was taken by the officers to be analyzed.

The five men were incarcerated in the city jail. Mr. Saylor, said they would have a preliminary hearing at Pineville before Judge J. C. Rollins before they are tried in the police court here.

W. B. Saylor, the city policemen, Chief Deputy Vanbeber and a number of other deputies constituted the raid-party. Swiftly going from place to place in two motor cars, they were able to make some of the raids before news of what they were doing, had spread.

Reasons Why You Should Support The Community Chest Campaign

Reason No. 3

THE SALVATION ARMY

The Salvation Army needs no explanation of its works. It is universally known, and universally respected. No other organization in the world performs its miracle acts of mercy and relief. A summary of a part of the work of the Salvation Army in Middlesboro during the last five months is a revelation:

Summary

501 Garments distributed
60 pair of shoes
148 Families helped in food, etc.
249 interviews with applicants
183 families helped by any means
371 hours visitation on spiritual missions
60 Christmas dinner baskets supplied with enough provisions for a family of seven, making a total of 420 meals.
250 poor children supplied with Christmas toys, clothing and shoes.
110 Street meetings held, thereby reaching an estimated crowd of 5550 on Sundays alone, and 3000 on week days, making a total of 8000.
57 Meetings held in Salvation Army Hall. Fruits, candy, and nuts given to prisoners at City Jail.

This report shows that the Salvation Army is doing a fundamental and important work which cannot be equaled in real service. The Community Chest Budget provides for $3,000 to support this charity of Middlesboro, and no citizen must withhold his assistance.

PLAN ADDITION FOR HOSPITAL

Buildings on Each Side to Be Erected Business Rooms Below, Connect With Hospital Upstairs

The latest building project contemplated for Cumberland Avenue is two two-story buildings, one to be built on each side of the Brosheer-Brummett Hospital, by the owners of the hospital. These buildings will be similar to the hospital building in design, structure and appearance. The first floor will be rented as business rooms and the second floors will be conducted with the second floor of the hospital and be used as offices. A new X-ray room a laboratory and new examining rooms are planned in this addition.

The building on the west will be seventeen feet by fifty feet, and the one on the east seventeen by seventy four feet. Both buildings will be modern throughout, with tile floors on both stories and fireproof construction in every thing. The ambulance entrance will be changed to the back of the hospital.

Weather Forecast.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—For Kentucky: Showers tonight and Sunday. Little change in temperature.

WOMEN STUDENTS AT K. U. INCREASE

Seventy-seven Graduates Last Year Compared to 2 in 1902—Dormitories Responsible

One of the most remarkable records of growth of higher education in the State of Kentucky is the increase in number of women who are obtaining a University education. One-third of the present students at the University of Kentucky is composed of women students.

In 1902 there were 116 women registered at the State University while today there are 530 A still larger number would have registered this year if there had been sufficient dormitories to take care of them

In 1902 there were two women in the graduating class of the University of Kentucky. Last year there were 77.

Previous to the completion of Patterson Hall in 1904, only a few women attended the University, these living with relatives and friends in the city. Through the influence of former President James K. Patterson and other friends of the University an appropriation of $30,000 was made for the erection of Patterson Hall.

Patterson Hall is a large, handsome three-story structure, built on a site of about three acres. It is heated by steam and lighted by electricity. The building has a large front veranda, and with its walks, drives, and numerous old trees, the spacious front lawn, one of the most beautiful in Lexington, is an inviting place. Tennis courts on the rear lawn provide recreation for the women students.

Immediately after this building was erected the number of students became so great that they could not all be accommodated in Patterson Hall and University authorities obtained two other dormitories, Boyd Hall and Smith Hall This year there are 113 women students in Patterson Hall, 34 in Boyd Hall and 44 in Smith Hall, 63 in Sorority Houses 207 with relatives and 62 living in town.

As in all other large Universities women students adopted the Woman's Self Government Association with an Executive Council, House Council and Advisory Board. All dormitories and sorority houses are under the supervision of Miss Frances Jewell, Dean of Women.

The members of the Student Government Association carry out the rules and regulations of the Association under the Honor System. The advisory Committee of this Association is composed of three women, one, the Dean of Women, and the other two appointed by the President from the Faculty or from the Board of Council. The members at present are Miss Jewell, Miss Adelaide Crane and Mrs. Charles Judson Smith. Miss Crane is also House Director at "Pratt Hall," as it is generally called by the students.

This new system of government is believed to have accomplished much in character building for a girl realizes that to break a rule would be becoming a bad citizen rather than being clever in "putting something over" on those in authority.

Burial services at Lexington were in charge of the Confederate Veterans of that city. Cliff Estill, secetary of Morgan's Men organization of which Captain Veal was a member, and Dick Redd had charge of the services.

The Rev. Sam P. Martin conducted the service at the house last night. Two songs, "Abide With Me," and "Jesus Lover Of My Soul," were sung by a quarter composed of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Hill, Mrs. J. W. Charlton and Will Hoe. Captain Veal's body was accompanied to Lexington by Judge and Mrs J. F. Bosworth and Judge J. E. Evans.

FATHER'S DAY AT M. E. CHURCH SOUTH

Pater Families to Get Attention Tomorrow—Large Attendance at S. S. Expected

"Father's Day" will be observed by the M. E South Church tomorrow, according to the Rev W. K. McClure, pastor. Efforts are being made to have an extra large attendance, one hundred members being the goal set by the Kentenia Men's Bible Class. The membership and attendance of this class has increased more than three hundred per cent during the past six months.

Families are especially urged to be present and bring their fathers. Fathers who have not been attending any school are invited to be present and become acquainted with the class members. Tomorrow is not the annual national "Father's Day" but it is being observed by a number of Methodist churches.

H. L. MONROE EXPLAINS WHY CHECKS NOT HONORED

In explaining why he is held on charge of passing checks which a Tazewell bank returned marked "Signature unauthorized" H. Lee Monroe says he had been accustomed to writing checks and signing his partner's, his firm's and his own name and that thousands of dollars of these had been honored He says he does not know why the bank failed to the last ones. He declares his intention of continuing business here.

L. AND N. PLANS SEA OUTLET FOR HARLAN COAL

Rummor Current Lines Connecting Southeastern Kentucky With Appalachia Tunneling Through Mountain, Will Be Built

C. C. AND O. PROBABLY LEASED WITH PROJECT IN MIND

That the L. and N. railroad plans a stupendous promotion project in the Harlan coal fields in connection with their recent 999-year lease of the C. C. and O. Railway, is the current rumor in local circles. No official announcement of this has been made but indications point to such a course ultimately.

The project would be simply the extension of the L. and N. on up Clover Fork, putting a tunnel through Black Mountain as long as the one at Cumberland Gap, and connecting up with the C. C. and O. at Appalachia The Inter-state Railway has been building a line for some time to connect up with the C. C. and O. near St. Paul, and this will be complete in July. Such a project, then, would make a line from Norton and Appalachia to Corbin thirteen miles shorter than the present one, with a low grade all of the way, giving a straight outlet to the sea for the Eastern Kentucky coal fields.

The L. and N. line now goes up Clover Fork to Fugate's Creek, eight miles from the place where Big Black Mountain and Little Black Mountain meet. The new line would only need to be fifteen miles long, including the tunnel. Substantiation of this project is seen in the fact that the L. and N. has already started to buy the right of way on up Clover Fork.

If this thing goes through it means a great thing for the development of section and for Middlesboro, because this city is by far the most desirable living place in the section, because of its location and because of its water supply. When the foreign market is revived, as it eventually must be, the sea outlet will make the market for coal in this section always good.

MINISTERS WILL MEET AT LIBRARY MONDAY MORNING

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Middlesboro Ministerial association will take place in the library building at 10 o'clock Monday morning. The Rev. W. K. McClure, chairman of the association, will preside. The Community Chest drive will come up for discussion and the regular routine business will be handled. All members are urged to be present.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS' CAMP OPENS JUNE 14 AT DANIEL BOONE

By Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, May 19.—The high school boy will be given first consideration in the State Y. M. C. A. camp schedule this year, according to Walter Hunter, boys work secretary. A high school boys camp conference is announced for June 14 to June 27 at Camp Daniel Boone on the Kentucky River, opening the season. The period this year will extend over two weeks instead of one, as formerly, which will give more time for recreational features.

A strong group of men, experienced in boy work will lead the conference, chief among these being C. C. Huffman, boys work secretary of the Knoxville Tennessee, Y. M. C. A. Other leaders will be "Dad" Zerfoss, boys work secretary of the Lexington "Y" who is known and loved by hundreds of boys; L. J. Porter, Associate State Y. M. C. A. secretary; E. V. Donaldson, boys work secretary of the Louisville association, who has directed the camp for several years; M. W. Sheffield of the Frankfort "Y"; C. M. Summers, of the State Y. M. C. A. staff of the district secretaries, and Walter Hunter, new boys work secretary of the State Y. M. C. A.

Two periods will be given to the conference each morning for discussion of each problem as, "What Shall I Do With My Life," "Where Shall I Invest It," "How Can I Be of Service to Others," and "What Can I Do For My High School" Mr. Huffman, who is said to be particularly fine as a leader of boys, will direct the Hi-Y discusstion and high school problems. The rest of the day will be given to camp activities including tennis, baseball, swimming, hiking and other features of camp life.

A THOUGHT

There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape.—I. Cor. 10:13.

As there is much beast and some devil in man, so is there some angel and some God in him. The beast and the devil may be conquered, but in this life never destroyed.—Coleridge.

PEOPLE MUST TAKE STAND ON RACE TRACK GAMBLING

Today, the occasion of the classic Kentucky Derby, there is assembled at Churchill Downs perhaps the largest crowd that ever witnessed a horse race in America. To the shame of the state of Kentucky, however, the Derby has developed, by urgent promotion, into an excuse for the highly perfected legalized gambling system and lovers of racing and true sportmanship must stand by to see the most thrilling of sports subjected to such degradation.

On all sides we hear the people of Kentucky discussing the morality of race track gambling as legalized by the laws of this state and there seems to be a tendency to shake the question down to a "right or wrong" basis. The thousands that patronize the pari-mutuel machine and the more than $2,000,000 that went into the treasury of the Kentucky Jockey Club as their per cent of the bets made at Kentucky's tracks last year is ample proof of the sentiment in favor of the virtue of such gambling, while the anti-race meetings and campaigns all over the state are also proof positive that there are a number of people who are against it.

The peculiar fact is, however, that the body politic of the state of Kentucky should burden its statute books with laws offering fines and imprisonments for playing poker and shooting craps and legalize race track gambling. Isn't it strange that an act could be so worded and constructed as to make legal a two dollar bet in a pari-mutual machine and fine a two dollar bet on the spots of a pair of dice? The answer is quite significant; the race track interests are organized and the poker and dice crowds are not, and thereby hangs the gist of all the present day agitation on so called race track gambling as far as the voters of Kentucky are concerned to both parties and it is going to take a sound dose of progressive Kentuckians in public office to ever clear up the complexion of those politics. That is not entirely impossible. We do not believe that the people of Kentucky are going to be bound and gagged by the race track interest or any other interest regardless of whether they are right or wrong.

The Kentucky Jockey Club as an organization has never had any politics though they have found willing servants in the democratic party more often than the republican. This could possibly be accounted for on the ground that the democrats have been in power in Kentucky oftener. However, regardless of party, they push their man where they find him. Is it significant that a large percentage of the men on their payrolls are politicans or lame ducks that recently fell from the grace of the public, but are still rewarded for their faithfulness while they were in office?. Is it strange that the papers of Kentucky are carrying full page ads stressing the taxes that come from the race tracks and the revenue they bring into the state? Is it odd that the treasury contributes to the campaign funds in the primaries of both parties and then centers on their man in either party who is victorious in his primary? Is it not significant that their officers and employees hold places on the state and national committees of both parties? Is the statement of an official in Frankfort that the most powerful lobby there is the racing interest lobby and that their friends in both parties unite for their legistation?

This observation comes from a man on the ground. Does it mean anything to say that not one bill that would injure racing has ever gotten by the Kentucky General Assembly and yet numbers of bills that have aided it have? You do not have to be a political book worm or a higher critic to understand conditions like those. The racing interests are about to assume the complete, open management of the government of Kentucky and it is time that Kentuckians call a halt. We are not yet ready to surrender our destinies to any set of men and the sooner Kentuckians jump up and shout of that declamation, the sooner will Kentucky rise herself from the political orgy that is about to beset her.

CHILDREN NOT THE STUPID ONES

Sixteen children sat in an isolated schoolroom, mere lumps of flesh. "All subnormal," explained the principal. "We can only keep them off the streets."

A doctor of the Public Health Service got interested. A year later the sixteen so-called half-wits were abreast of other children of the same age. Three led their classes. Their teeth and eyes and adenoids had been all wrong.

Twenty million dollars a year, according to the Public Health Service, would keep all our American school children normal, and would save an annual waste for sick-bed and other charges of $200,000,000.

Last winter Congress appropriated $50,000 for the Rural Public Health Service against over $50,000,000 for rivers and harbors. That's how the pork barrel is valued as against our children—in politics.—Collier's Weekly.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem

REFUGE

By Berton Braley

When the world is all of a golden glow
And the blood in your veins is a tingling flow,
And joy is calling you to and fro
Where laughter echoes and songs ring true;
It's an irksome thought that you have to slave
At a task afar from the play you crave,
And often and often you rail and rave
At the daily work that you've GOT to do.

How glad you'd be if you dared to drop
The work of office or farm or shop,
If you could only afford to stop
Whenever the impulse bade you to,
And scamper away to have your fling,
Like a capering lamb in the flush of spring;
Ah, often enough it's a wearisome thing,
The daily work that you've GOT to do.

But when, with sorrow and woe and pain,
You're sick of heart and of soul and brain,
And your courage is cracking beneath the strain,
And skies are sullen and gray to view;
Ah then, you're glad that a task there is!
A rock to cling to 'mid seas of care,
And the thing that shall rescue you from despair
Is the daily job that you've GOT to do.

LESLIE PRESCOTT TO HER MOTHER, MRS. JOSEPH GRAVES HAMILTON

Dearest, Dearest Mother:

I wish you and dad would just pack up your things and come over and see our new apartment. It is perfectly wonderful and really, mother, I'm a very good cook. With some help from the Woman's Exchange and the rotisserie I get along famously.

Jack told me the other night that he never was so happy in his life and I wish you could see with what pride he showed his chief from the advertising company all over it.

"My wife did all this by herself and I never knew one word about it until she surprised me," he said. "Isn't she wonderful?"

When they sat down to dinner Mr James—that is Jack's chief's name—said that he believed he would get married himself if he could have as nice food he was eating.

Of course I didn't tell him that the chicken was from the rotisserie, the angel food cake from the Woman's Exchange and the ice cream from the confectioner's. I managed to make the salad and cook the potatoes and peas.

It was a nice dinner, mother, and the table with all our wedding silver looked perfectly scrumptious. You would be proud of your child although I have a bone to pick with you that you did not teach me a little more about cooking. You know I don't dare to roast a leg of lamb or bake a chicken or do any of those things yet. I am afraid they will be spoiled. And I don't want to get in bad with Jack.

When I think, mother dear, that this never could have been if you hadn't been so generous to me, I shall never cease to be grateful to you.

Jack got a bonus yesterday on a new contract and he says we can have lots of new things.

He told me the evening after his chief was here that the next morning he had called him into his office and told him that with such a splendid, capable and charming wife as I, he could not help but get along.

There, I think I have told you enough about myself. I am just going to say "I love you" and save the rest for the next time. Why does not Alice write?

LESLIE.

LETTER FOM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO THE GAY LITTLE MARQUISE

Why do they call men the consistent sex, little Marquise? Did you find out?

Jack has completely forgotten that he found so much fault with me over the house. You would think, to hear him talk to his friends, that the whole plan and its carrying out had suited him from the first.

Why, oh why did he not accept it gracefully and sweetly as he does now instead of making me thoroughly unhappy over the first thing I ever did for him?

I have tried to forgive him and I guess I have, but, oh little secret confidant, I cannot forget that he made me more miserable than I had ever been before in my life.

I could not tell this in my letter to mother, but I can tell it to you.

Opportunities always look bigger going than coming.

OLIVIA HASN'T FINISHED DRESSING YET- HERE'S THE EVENING PAPER IF YOU CARE TO LOOK AT IT- SHE'LL BE DOWN SOON -
THANKS
I COULD READ A HALF A DOZEN PAPERS WAITING FOR HER- SHE MUST BE SLOWER THAN MOLASSES IN JANUARY - WONDER IF ALL WOMEN ARE THAT SLOW IN DRESSING?
WELL, I'VE BEEN HERE AN HOUR NOW - SHE MUST BE TAKING A NAP- I HEAR SOMEBODY COMING DOWN STAIRS - MAYBE THAT'S HER - OH HELLO, HARRY!
HELLO, MISS OLIVIA- THOUGHT YOU WERE NEVER COMING - I'LL SAY YOU LOOK GOOD ENOUGH TO EAT -
ALL RIGHT WHERE WILL WE GO?

A BOY'S HOPE FOR THE FUTURE

I'd like to hunt for buffalo an' ride
the western slope,
I'd like to be a cowboy an' make circles with a rope,
I'd like to be a trooper an' sit 'round a fire at night
An' hear the wolves an' catamounts a'growling at the light.
But buffalo an' catamounts I guess I'll never see,
Cos Pa says that he hopes to make a lawyer out of me.

I'd like to be an aerobat, performing in the air,
Pretending I was going to fall to give the folks a scare;
I'd like to balance on a pole an' dangle by my teeth
An' frighten all the little boys an' girls who sat beneath.
But Uncle John, he says he hopes for higher thing than that,
An' I should have to run away to be an acrobat.

I'd like to be a circus clown and run around the ring
An' wear a funny suit of clothes, an' laugh at everything,
I'd like to paint my face all white an' have a lot of fun,
But Ma she says that she must be proud to say that I'm her son;
She wants to hold her head up high, as high as it can be,
An' she is hoping she can make a preacher out of me.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Frozen Rice With Strawberries

Wash one cup of rice and cook until tender or soft in one quart of milk with one-half teaspoon of salt and the rind of one-half a lemon. Add one-half cup of sugar, one cup of stiffly beaten cream and one teaspoon of vanilla.

Pack into a mold, having the mold filled to overflowing. Cover with a piece of buttered paper, put cover on tightly and pack in salt and ice for two hours. Use two parts of ice to one part of salt.

Unmold and serve with crushed strawberries, sweetened to taste.

NOTE—The lemon rind may be removed from the lemon in long strips, and these removed from the rice before it is molded.

Neglect Your Hair and It Can't Be Beautiful Says Rubinstein

Just as Mary Garden has developed her talents and made a name and career for herself she has developed her face and figure to a point beyond mere perfection of feature. Much of her individuality lies in the regal way in which she carries herself and in the beauty of her contour. You can't imagine her ever slumping or letting herself go. Her's is the beauty of intelligence, cultivation and charm. What she has done, others can do.

The condition of the hair is largely a matter of physical health, but nowhere is neglect more evident. Neglected hair is never beautiful, while sometimes scanty heads of hair pass for beautiful and luxuriant ones just because the possessors give them care

Beautiful hair is clean hair. There is considerable diversity of opinion among hair specialists regarding the frequency with which the shampoo should occur.

Some maintain that every two or three weeks is none too often, while others declare that once in two or three months is frequent enough.

Naturally the hair should be washed often enough to keep it clean, but brushing it thoroughly each night and using a tonic which is rubbed carefully into the scalp often keep it clean without occasioning a shampoo oftener than every month or six weeks

If you have a tendency to baldness or a decided loss of hair, shampooing should occur only when cleanliness absolutely requires it, for you are depriving it of the natural oil when you wash it.

An excellent shampoo is made by beating an egg into an ounce of water and rubbing it thoroughly into the scalp. The yolk contains iron and sulphur, both excellent for the hair. The white is very cleansing.

If you prefer to use soap, nothing is better than to melt a cake of white castile soap in a quart of boiling water Wet the hair first with warm water, then with a couple of tablespoons of the soap jelly and rub thoroughly into the scalp. Gather the long ends up on the crown so that they, too, may be well lathered.

Before rinsing, massage the scalp with firm rotary movements Rinse the hair through several waters, the last of which should be cold Be sure that every particle of soap has been removed.

Brushes and combs should be selected with care and cleansed frequently. For exaggerated cases of dandruff or hair ailments it is best to consult a specialist who will describe a remedy for your particular case. Sun baths are excellent It is also advisable to let long hair hang down the back while in the boudoir that it may have air and freedom

Dyeing or bleaching the hair seems to me most unwise and I always advise patrons against such remedies.

VIRGINIA RAILWAY TO ELECTRIFY 213 MILES OF TRACK

Will Involve $15,000,00 Expenditure—Being Done to Increase Hauling Capacity Beyond Power Of Steam

NEW 90,000 HORSE POWER GENERATOR FOR UNDERTAKING

In order to increase its traffic capacity and to secure important operating economies, the Virginia Railway has decided to electrify 213 miles of its track lying between Roanoke, Va., and Mullens, West Virginia. This undertaking will involve the expenditure of $15,000,000. The order for the electric locomotives, power house, transformer stations, and other apparatus has been awarded to the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and forms the largest railroad electrification contract ever placed. The division to be electrified crosses the Allegheny Mountains. The alternating current, single phase system will be used.

"The Virginian is a reconized leader of American railways as regards heavy tonnage operation, and this undertaking will be epochal in the history of American railroads," stated Frank H. Shepard, Director of Heavy Traction for the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. "Built by the late Henry H. Rogers in accordance with the most modern engineering practice, it has been renowned for the excellence of its construction, the immense size of its trains and its low ton-mile costs, every since it started operations in 1909. The Virginian railway has always been the chief exponent of mass transportation, that is, the handling of traffic by means of the largest and heaviest trains instead of by means of an equivalent number of small trains. As a matter of consistent policy the Virginian's management has regularly increased the size of the trains with every improvement in railroad equipment, until today this railroad is operating the heaviest trains in the world and hauling them by the most powerful of steam locomotives.

"With its present equipment, the Virginian is moving 7,000,000 tons of coal per annum, but this capacity is not enough to take care of the growing demands of the area served. To obtain additional capacity by still further increasing the size of the trains is no longer possible with steam operation, for the simple reason that the limit in the power of the steam locomotive has been reached. Hence, after a thorough study, it has been decided to electrify with the alternating current system this mountain grade division, which represents the neck of the bottle, of the railroad

"The chief advantage of electric operation is the greater power that can be applied to each train. The largest steam locomotives now in use on the Virginian are the articulated mallet type, with twenty driving wheels and four cylinders. Three of these huge engines are used to move 3500-ton trains over the grades, but their combined power does not exceed 7000 horse power, and their speed on the grades is only 7 miles per hour. The new electric locomotives, however, developing 20,000 horse power per train, will haul 9000 ton trains up the grades at the rate of 14 miles per hour, and it will be entirely practical in the future to further increase this power so that 12000-ton trains can be handled at the same speed.

"A feature of the electric locomotives will be the use of regenerative braking on the down grades. This method of braking will not only reduce the wear of the brake shoes and wheels and improve operation, but will also save 15,000,000 kilowatt-hours of electric energy per year

"Power for operation will be supplied by a 90,000 horse power generating plant to be erected on the New River. This will supply 88,000 volt current to the main transmission line. For use on the trolley wire from which the locomotives will draw their power, this high-voltage current is to be stepped down to 11,000 volts by transformer stations placed at regular intervals alon gthe line. On the locomotives, this is reduced to a low value for the operation of the motors."

"MECHANO" WILL WED GIRL WHO CAN MAKE HIM SMILE

A husband for a smile!

This unique offer will be made next week by George Stevens, professionally known as "?Mechano?" formerly of New York City who stakes his bachelor celibacy against any woman's ability to make him smile. A Studebaker car will be given any man who can clear the smile.

Mechano will be at the Middlesboro Motor company Studebaker agency, every night next week to test his power of facial control against feminine wiles or masculine ingenuity. He comes here from Lexington where he entertained 30,000 people last week and escaped without being compelled to relinquish his hold on single bliss.

Mechano turns to stone at will, performs the famous Wizard of Oz dance, does a variety of novelty dances and performs about one hundred novelty arts. He will be at the Middlesboro Motor company from 7 to 9 o'clock each evening next week.

Do you know Baseball?

by Billy Evans

Questions

ONE—If the pitcher, in the act of delivering the ball to the batsman accidentally strikes his leg and the ball drops to the ground, how is it regarded?

TWO—Manager substitutes a southpaw for right handed pitcher, with a left handed batter up. After the pitcher gets two strikes on the batter the manager sends in a right handed batter. Can the manager of the team in the field then change pitchers if he so desires?

THREE—Outfielder in making a play on a runner at third hits umpire with the ball, deflecting it into foul territory. Runner tries to score and is thrown out at the plate. What about it?

FOUR—Is it necessary for the team in the field to make an appeal to have the umpire call a balk?

FIVE—In trying to get a runner at second the catcher's arm comes into contact with the umpire as he starts his throw, the ball going wild and the runner reaching third. What is the correct decision?

Answers

ONE—The fact that it is an accident is given no consideration. Such a play is ruled a balk.

TWO—A batsman can be removed at any time, but when a pitcher is sent into the game he must pitch until a batsman has either been retired or reaches first.

THREE—The ball is in play in this case, in fact, is always in play when the umpire is actually hit by a thrown ball.

FOUR—It is not necessary to make an appeal in order to have the umpire call a balk. It is up to the umpire to render an immediate decision when he believes the pitcher has so offended.

FIVE—If the umpire back of the plate interferes with the catcher in making a play the ball becomes dead and the runners are sent back to their original bases.

STATE CHILDREN'S CODE COMMISSION MAKES REPORT

Recommend Radical Change in Marriage Laws, Raise Age Consent Refuse License to Persons Physically Unfit

By Associated Press.

FRANKFORT, Ky., May 17.—Radical changes in the marriage laws of Kentucky are recommended in the report of the Kentucky Children's Code Commission submitted to Governor Morrow in accordance with an act of the 1920 legislature. The outstanding recommendations are changes in the ages at which persons may be legally married, refusal to permit marriages of feeble-minded, epileptic and insane persons, and publication of intent to be married at least ten days before the date of the ceremony.

Under the present marriage laws of Kentucky it is possible for a boy fourteen years of age and a girl twelve to be legally married, the written consent of parents being all that is required up to twenty-one years of age, according to the report. A marriage license may be granted immediately upon request but when the persons acknowledge it are nto personally known to the county clerk he may require a bond of $100 to guarantee that no lawful reason exists to prevent the marriage.

No health requirements need be met and the only effort to prevent the transmission of mental defect is found in a statute which makes it illegal for anyone knowingly to perform the wedding ceremony for a feeble-minded person.

"The commission believes that no other one cause is so fruitful a source of juvenile delinquency and dependency as is the hasty, ill considered marriage," the report submitted to Governor Morrow declares. Young parents crowding the divorce courts, families doomed in advance by the crushing weight of inherited defect, boys and girls sacrificing education and professional training to rush into matrimony such a situation does not make for the rearing of strong and happy children.

"It is the conviction of the commission that the age of marriage should be fixed at 21 for boys and 18 for girls, but it seems inexpedient to recommend so radical change in the law at this time. The commission recommends raising of the age to 18 for boys and 16 for girls.

"The commission recommends a further amendment to the law which will forbid the marriage of feeble-minded, epileptic or insane persons and persons affected with venereal disease or tuberculosis, also a change in the form of application for marriage license which shall require each applicant to answer to these or similar questions:

Have you been inmate at an institution, public or private, for the care of the epileptic, feeble-minded or insane? If so: Name of institution, Location. Date of discharge. Have you legally been restored to capacity?. Are you effected with venereal disease or tuberculosis?

Would Provide Penalties

The commission does out further it feasible at this time to recommend the requirements of a physician's certificate of freedom from venereal disease or tuberculosis. It believes that the use of the question suggested above will prevent some marriages which would not take place and that being compelled to answer such questions will have a distinctly educational effect upon the persons applying for license to marry.

"The commission recommends that publication of intent be required ten days before a marriage license can be granted but that the requirements be so phrased as to provide for handling for emergency cases in less time, at the discretion of the county court. A penalty should be imposed upon any person who after the publications of intention of marriage interposes and malicious or untruthful objections to granting the license."

WHAT'S WRONG WITH WEATHER?

Don't Let That Worry You" Say Experts.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Remarkable weather this spring isn't it? Very unusual! Like to know what's causing it? Well—

"The temperature of the earth depends upon the heat we receive from the sun," says Dr. Charles Greeley Abbot, assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution and directory of the Astrophysical Observatory.

"For several years the sun's heat had not fluctuated much until November, 1921, when the monthly values began to decrease. By October, 1923, the values reached a level three per cent lower than before the decrease commenced. Since then they have continued on this low level. Since the earth's temperature, rainfall and other phenomena depend upon the sun's heat, one would expect that so marked a change would be apt to be reflected in the weather conditions."

That Freak Weather

"How about it?" I asked Dr. Charles F. Marvin, chief of the United States Weather Bureau, citing Dr. Abbot's observations. "Is the sun cooling off? Is that responsible for this freak weather?"

Marvin grinned and came back with a question of his own:

"Is the weather due to the apparent variation in solar radiation, or is the seeming variation in solar radiation due to the weather?"

"You tell me; you're the weather man," I continued.

"Well," Marvin continued, drawing from his desk a bunch of intricate graphs and charts, "I am not yet ready to accept the theory of variation in solar radiation as a basis for weather forecasting. Measuring the sun's heat is a very difficult task. Many atmospheric conditions, cloud, dust, etc., tend to disturb the accuracy of the measurements. But look at these charts—running back over many years. They indicate that as the methods for measuring solar radiation have improved, and as better equipment and better stations for observation have been obtained, the apparent variability of the sun's heat has diminished.

"That might indicate that the variation recorded was not due to any change in the heat of the sun itself, but to errors in measurement and to theinfluences of atmospheric conditions affecting the intensity of the rays as they reach the earth's surface.

"Maybe there is a real and actual open minded. But I am certain that variation in the heat of the sun? Maybe that is influencing the weather. I'm a good part of the apparent variation is atmospheric and earthly. In other words, while a change in solar radiation may be affecting the weather, I'm quite sure the weather contributes to the seeming change in solar radiation!"

"Well," we suggested, "how about sunspots? Maybe they're to blame for the weather. Maybe they'll give us another year like 1816, when there were frosts all summer"

"Ah-h-h!" said Marvin, apparently scenting another unpopular weather bugaboo. "Sunspots!

"Well, in 1816—which is known as the year without a summer—we were in a period of maximum sunspots. The old sun was pretty well spotted that year. Therefore, many have said, the cold summer.

"This year we are in a period of sunspots minimum. If we say the sunspots maximum in 1816 caused the cold of that year, and now say this year's cold is due to a sunspot minimum, we are attributing exactly the same result to exactly opposite causes.

Long-Distance Forecasts

"My advice to the public—particularly to farmers and others whose activities are directly affected by the weather—is, don't worry. The sun isn't going to grow cold on us right away. Neither are its spots or lack of spots likely to affect us seriously."

"Is it to be a hot or cold summer," I asked.

"No one knows, and there is no way to tell," Dr. Marvin replied.

"But," I asked, "can't you give a definite forecast?"

"Such a forecast is impossible," he said. "There is positively no basis on which to make long-distance forecasts, covering a year or even a season. It can't be done."

The cause of the cold weather? Well, as I sum up the conversation, eliminating the variation in solar radiation and the effect of sunspots and such, the only answer that seems to remain, as Dr. Marvin said, is:

"The weather depents on the weather!"

FELT TIRED, SO TIRED

Indiana Lady Says She Was Run-Down, Suffered With Her Back, Took Cardui, and Got Well.

Richmond, Ind.—"I thought I would write a line or so, to say that I owe my good health and strength to Cardui," says a letter from Mrs. Cora Courtney, 31 Railroad Street; this city.

"I was all run-down until my family thought they would lose me," writes Mrs. Courtney. "My husband coaxed me to take Cardui, so, to please him, I did, and will say I do not regret it, for I am able to do all my work and do my shopping.

"I have five children, four in school, my husband and a boarder to do for, and I do all my own work for all of us, and find time to play. We all praise Cardui. Every sick and run-down woman should take this wonderful medicine.

"I suffered with my back; a very weak feeling in my limbs.

"I felt hardly able to drag; just tired—so tired all the time.

"It was an effort for me to do anything, but Cardui helped me so I felt like a different woman."

If you are in a run-down physical condition, suffering as this Indiana lady says she did, give Cardui a fair trial. It should help you.

Why You Should Have Check Insurance

Last year it cost the American check-writing public $50,000,000.00 through check frauds or twenty times the amount of bank burglary and holdups.

When your check leaves your hands, who handles it.

Sometimes you know—more often you don't. To protect you, as a depositor of this bank, we are providing you greater proctection—Super-Safety Insured Bank Checks—"the world's safest bank checks." Each depositor is furnished free $1,000 insurance in the Hartford Accident & Indemnity Company against loss through fraudulent and felonious alteration. These checks are also protected by The William J. Burns International Detective Agency, Inc.

This is the latest development in check protection, and its adoption by this bank is another indication of the care taken by the officers in safe guarding the money of their depositors.

Insurance beats all the ingenuity ever devised for protecting checks. A crook would be very foolish indeed to tackle these checks to defraud when there are so many checks in transit Not Insured and Not Protected.

Come in and get this positive protection.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY IS NOW IN SESSION

Members of the Southern Presbyterian church are looking forward with great interest to the sixty-third annual meeting of the general assembly of the church, which began in the Anderson Auditorium, Montreat, N. C. May 17. The general assembly is the highest court of the denomination, its sphere of activity reaching into sixteen states, eight countries and four continents. A number of important matters relating to the future plans and growth of the church will come before this body for consideration.

Montreat, the church's summer conference grounds, located in the heart of the Blue Ridge mountains, should prove an ideal and most acceptable meeting place. The new auditorium where the sessions are to be held is a marvel of beauty and efficiency—said to be the greatest auditorium in the south.

All churches are entitled to representation at the assembly through commissioners elected by the respective Presbyteries. The following will represent the Synod of Appalachia at the approaching Assembly:

Rev. E. V. Tadlock, Blackey, Ky.; Rev. W. M. Walch, Abingdon, Va.; J. H. McCue, Bristol, Va.; J. W. Walker, Dublin, Va.; Rev. S. H. Hay, Morristown, Tenn.; Rev. John Young, Spruce Pine, N. C.; E. B. Comerford, Holston Valley, Tenn.; F. R. DeVault, Jonesboro, Tenn.; Rev. H. H. Pitzer, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Rev. S. M. Wolfe, Epperson, Tenn.; Judge P. H. Thatch, Chattanooga, Tenn.; and W. N. Magill, Athens, Tenn.
